

LIU BEI'S CAMP

Liu Bei, lord of Shu

Respected benevolent leader of the southern provinces. He was thought to be the ideal general who built a kingdom on loyalty, humility, and Confucian ideals.

Zhuge Liang, Master Strategist

One of the three kingdoms era's most respected scholar, strategist and inventor. A military super genius whose brilliant strategies were thought to be "magic" by the people.

Guan Yu, Badass Bastard General from Hell

Currently deified and still worshipped in some places in China, Guan Yu was known as one of the most badass warriors in Chinese history, both powerful and righteous. The curved-blade polearm he was popular for wielding was named after him.

Zhang Fei, Loud Brash General

He swore an oath of brotherhood with Liu Bei and Guan Yu. He was an excellent general and powerful fighter, but known to have a poor temper, alcoholic tendencies and brutish demeanor.

Zhao Yun, Hero and General of the Standard

Not much is known historically about Zhao Yun, other than the fact that he was sent by Liu Bei to areas that needed to be put in order, to which Zhao Yun did quickly and decisively. He was said to be charismatic, powerful, courageous and unwaveringly loyal. (don't confuse name with Zhou Yu, general of the Wu during the Red Cliff campaign)

SUN QUAN'S CAMP

Sun Quan, Leader of Wu

Inherited his land at 18 from his brother, he is known for the support of the common people, and gathering important people to his causes.

Zhou Yu, Strategist for Sun Quan

Sun Quan's military advisor and the supreme commander of the united forces against Cao Cao. He's responsible for most of the strategems that appear in the battle of Red Cliffs. (don't confuse name with Zhao Yun, hero of the Shu)

Xiao Qiao, wife of Zhou Yu

Not much is known about her historically, other than being "totally hot".

Sun Shangxiang, Sister of Sun Quan

She received martial arts training and all her maidservants wielded weapons, which was really weird for the time. She was a kickass tomboy.

Gan Ning, Ex-Pirate Headstrong General

In his youth he led a gang of pirates. After kicking that lifestyle, he joined up with Sun Quan and Zhou Yu.

Lu Su, Diplomat and Advisor

A wealthy advisor to Zhou Yu and the Wei kingdom, he also acted as a liason with Liu Bei's forces. A kind and capable strategist, in the movie he also serves as a bit of comic relief.

CAO CAO'S CAMP

Cao Cao (Ts'ao Ts'ao), Leader of the Wei

Once the highest chancellor, he became the ultimate warlord, commanding most of the Emperor's forces. He's thought of as a military genius and brilliant ruler, as well as a cruel and merciless tyrant.

Cai Mao, Naval Warfare Specialist

Surrenders early to Cao Cao, is granted a high status as naval commander. Is promised even higher rank from Cao Cao depending on the success of their naval campaign.

Jiang Gan, Civilian Official

An old classmate of Zhou Yu's, Cao Cao uses him to try to get Zhou Yu to defect to Cao Cao's side.

Zhang Liao, Seasoned Military General

Just an all around badass who was famous for participating in many campaigns, and stopping the advance of Sun Quan's army in the later parts of the Three Kingdoms era.

Zhang Yun, Nephew of Cai Mao

He travels with his uncle as a military official specializing in naval operations.
